Financial considerations for your luxury yacht purchase from J.P. Morgan.

Our founder and namesake at J.P. Morgan, knew the call well, regularly retreating to his beloved 165-long yacht, Corsair, as a respite from the outsized role he played in the late 1800s/early 1900s as America's foremost banker. He also used the Corsair to settle several deals, and disputes, as the vessel sailed leisurely around Manhattan or Long Island.

If joining the grand tradition of yachting is your passion, we are pleased to help you make this major purchase with your head, as well as your heart. There are several options for venturing out to the sea. Each should, and can, align with your broader financial goals, and it is here that some thoughtful planning can make a big difference.

The First Step: Define how you plan to use your yacht. How many people?
Destinations? How often will you use it?

The first step is to define how you plan to use your yacht.

How many people is it for? Where is it going? How often do you plan to use it?

Your answers will help you decide to build new, buy pre-owned or to charter. Luxury yachts that are privately owned and crewed start at about $2 million, while superyachts (at least 79 feet long) can run into the hundreds of millions. Wait times for a custom superyacht can be three to five years, and demand may push prices even higher.

Of course, the purchase price is only one aspect of a major purchase like this. At J.P. Morgan, we're also able to help clients plan for annual costs to maintain and operate a private yacht, including crew, dockage, boat insurance and maintenance -- that will amount to at least 10% of the purchase price. And there is always fuel, insurance or security costs, too. We also see many purchasers faced with a payment schedule, often in a foreign currency like euros. Our Advisors can help you consider ways to mitigate some of the risks that come with foreign exchange volatility during these transactions.

Whatever your decision, it's wise to consider how these options might affect your overall lifestyle and other financial goals, as each comes with different cash-flow implications and trade-offs.

If you are looking to set sail immediately, chartering can be a good option and would likely cost you less and give you access sooner. On the other hand, if you build, you can customize amenities and have unfettered access—and then charter while your yacht is being built. You could also choose to own a relatively modest yacht but charter a superyacht every year for an extended family-and-friends vacation.

At J.P. Morgan, we can help you think through all your options so that you might ensure this new commitment is incorporated into your family and financial plans. Even if you are able to afford to purchase the yacht outright — up to 50% of the contract price can be required as down payment — it could be more efficient to borrow against your assets. Or financing could be secured by the yacht itself. There are additional planning issues you might want to keep in mind, too, such as family ground rules, protecting your personal finances from liability, and accounting for it in your will.

Ultimately, we can help you make sure your liquidity and lifestyle buckets are funded and invested to help support your adventures on the high seas. J.P. Morgan himself would have it no other way.

THE PAIRING GUIDE

FOR A DISCERNING PALATE

Scotch whisky is a centuries-old Scottish dark golden spirit crafted from malt or grain. When pairing scotch and yachts consider the interplay of all things luxury. The 'water of life' dates back to 1494 in the Exchequer Rolls of Scotland. The auditing document states that by order of the King, a Friar would make aqua vitae from 'VIII bolls of malt.' The 'e' in whiskey was thought to be eliminated to differentiate the Scottish brand from its foreign counterparts.

While there isn't a right or wrong way to drink scotch, some connoisseurs like to cleanse their palate with chilled water between sips. There is a myriad of cocktails that include this amber nectar, such as the famed Rob Roy or a whisky sour. If you prefer, add a few drops of water to your drink to expand the flavors as the liquids combine, or add a large spherical ice cube that will melt slowly.

With futuristic beauty, the 'regal silver' sportfly RIVA 88' FOLGORE elegantly harmonizes the past and the present with traditionally stylish mahogany features paired with innovative materials such as carbon. The boat is a product of a unique partnership between Officina Italiana Design, the Product Strategy Committee, and the Ferretti Group Engineering Department. The two MTU 16V engines combine to produce 5,276 horsepower to enjoy a cruising speed of 32 knots. Seakeeper stabilization lets you cruise in comfort.

You can enjoy Jefferson's Ocean Aged at Sea® whisky that's aged aboard ships that travel to various ports worldwide. Enjoy the long, smooth finish and expect a nose of sea spray, sweet tobacco and crème brûlée, and delicate flavors of caramel, cinnamon, and a hint of espresso. The whisky is at the mercy of the sea; extreme weather churns the mellow liquid, increasing its interaction with the wooden barrels and hyper-ages the final product for you to savor aboard your RIVA 88' FOLGORE.

Inspired by a blend of luxury and technology, the 'silver metallic' PERSHING 9X is built with futuristic materials. The maxi coupé combines expected Pershing power with the thrill of X-gen excellence for an unprecedented nautical experience. The two engines provide a combined 5,276 horsepower for comfortable cruising at 38 knots. Highland Park 12 is considered one of the best Scotch whisky's of 2023; it has a smoky after-flavor that brings out the nuances of this pale, fruity, and caramel Scotch. The nose is floral and fragrant with hints of heather and complementary spices. You'll find it smooth and honeyed with malt, citrus fruits, and distinctive tones of wood smoke. Produced by the sister distillery of the world-famed Macallan, the high-demand whisky is made with exceptional craftsmanship and expertise.

Dream big with the majestic and versatile Ferretti flagship yacht. Architects have achieved a breathtaking yacht using revolutionary materials, geometrics, and forms to create an imitable luxury yacht with state-of-the-art technical solutions, ever-inspired interiors, and unprecedented comfort for quintessential well-being and style. FERRETTI YACHTS 1000 has introduced an innovative aft beach area ideal for entertaining. The two engines combine 5,276 horsepower with a cruising speed of 24 knots.

The Macallan Rare Cask has the welcoming and pleasant aromas of toasty oak, dried fruit, and vanilla on the nose. The smooth texture boasts rich sherry oak from the first-fill aging process. You'll find hints of raisins, rich dark chocolate, caramel butterscotch, and candied citrus. The slightly buttery flavors reveal carefully considered spices and a hint of cigar tobacco at the end. If you enjoy a trace of sherry, you'll enjoy the Macallan Rare Cask aboard the FERRETTI YACHTS 1000.

CUSTOM LINE 140

Inspired by the love of comfortable cruising, the new CUSTOM LINE 140 has a sports aesthetic, sleek and powerful contours, and an exciting alternation of light colors and materials accented with dark plate glass. The highest standards of quality are tailor-made with the expected perfection of Francesco Paszkowski's design styling created by specialized craftsmen. With 2,638 horsepower over two engines, you are afforded a comfortable cruising speed of 18 knots. Entertain guests in the spectacular alfresco and lounge areas.

Made by the sea, Talisker's 10-Year-Old Single Malt Scotch Whisky has won the hearts of many scotch devotees. Produced on the Isle of Skye, the slightly saline peaty whisky is aged for a minimum of 10 years. The intensely smoky scotch has a peat smoke on the nose with a hint of salt-water oysters and citrus flavors. The slightly peppery finish is long, warming, and sweet. It pairs perfectly with the CUSTOM LINE 140.

ROB ROY

The Rob Roy is a delightful little cocktail worth drinking at sea. It's easy to make and utterly delicious.

- 2 ounces of smoky scotch whisky
- 0.75 ounces of sweet vermouth
- 1 large dash of Angostura Bitters

Add all the ingredients to a mixing glass and stir for between 15 and 25 seconds with ice, strain into a coupe or cocktail glass and garnish with two fresh black cherries.

CENTURIES OF INNOVATION AND EXCELLENCE

The story of Penfolds begins in most humble moments, on landscapes harsh and unknown.

It was 1844 when Dr. Christopher Rawson Penfold and his wife Mary boarded a ship in Europe, setting off on an arduous, long crossing to a colony in a fledgling Australia. They settled on 500 acres near Adelaide, unpacking a few possessions, among which were prized, delicate vine cuttings from Europe. These European vines were planted, and a young couple pursued a dream of making medicinal, fortified wine.

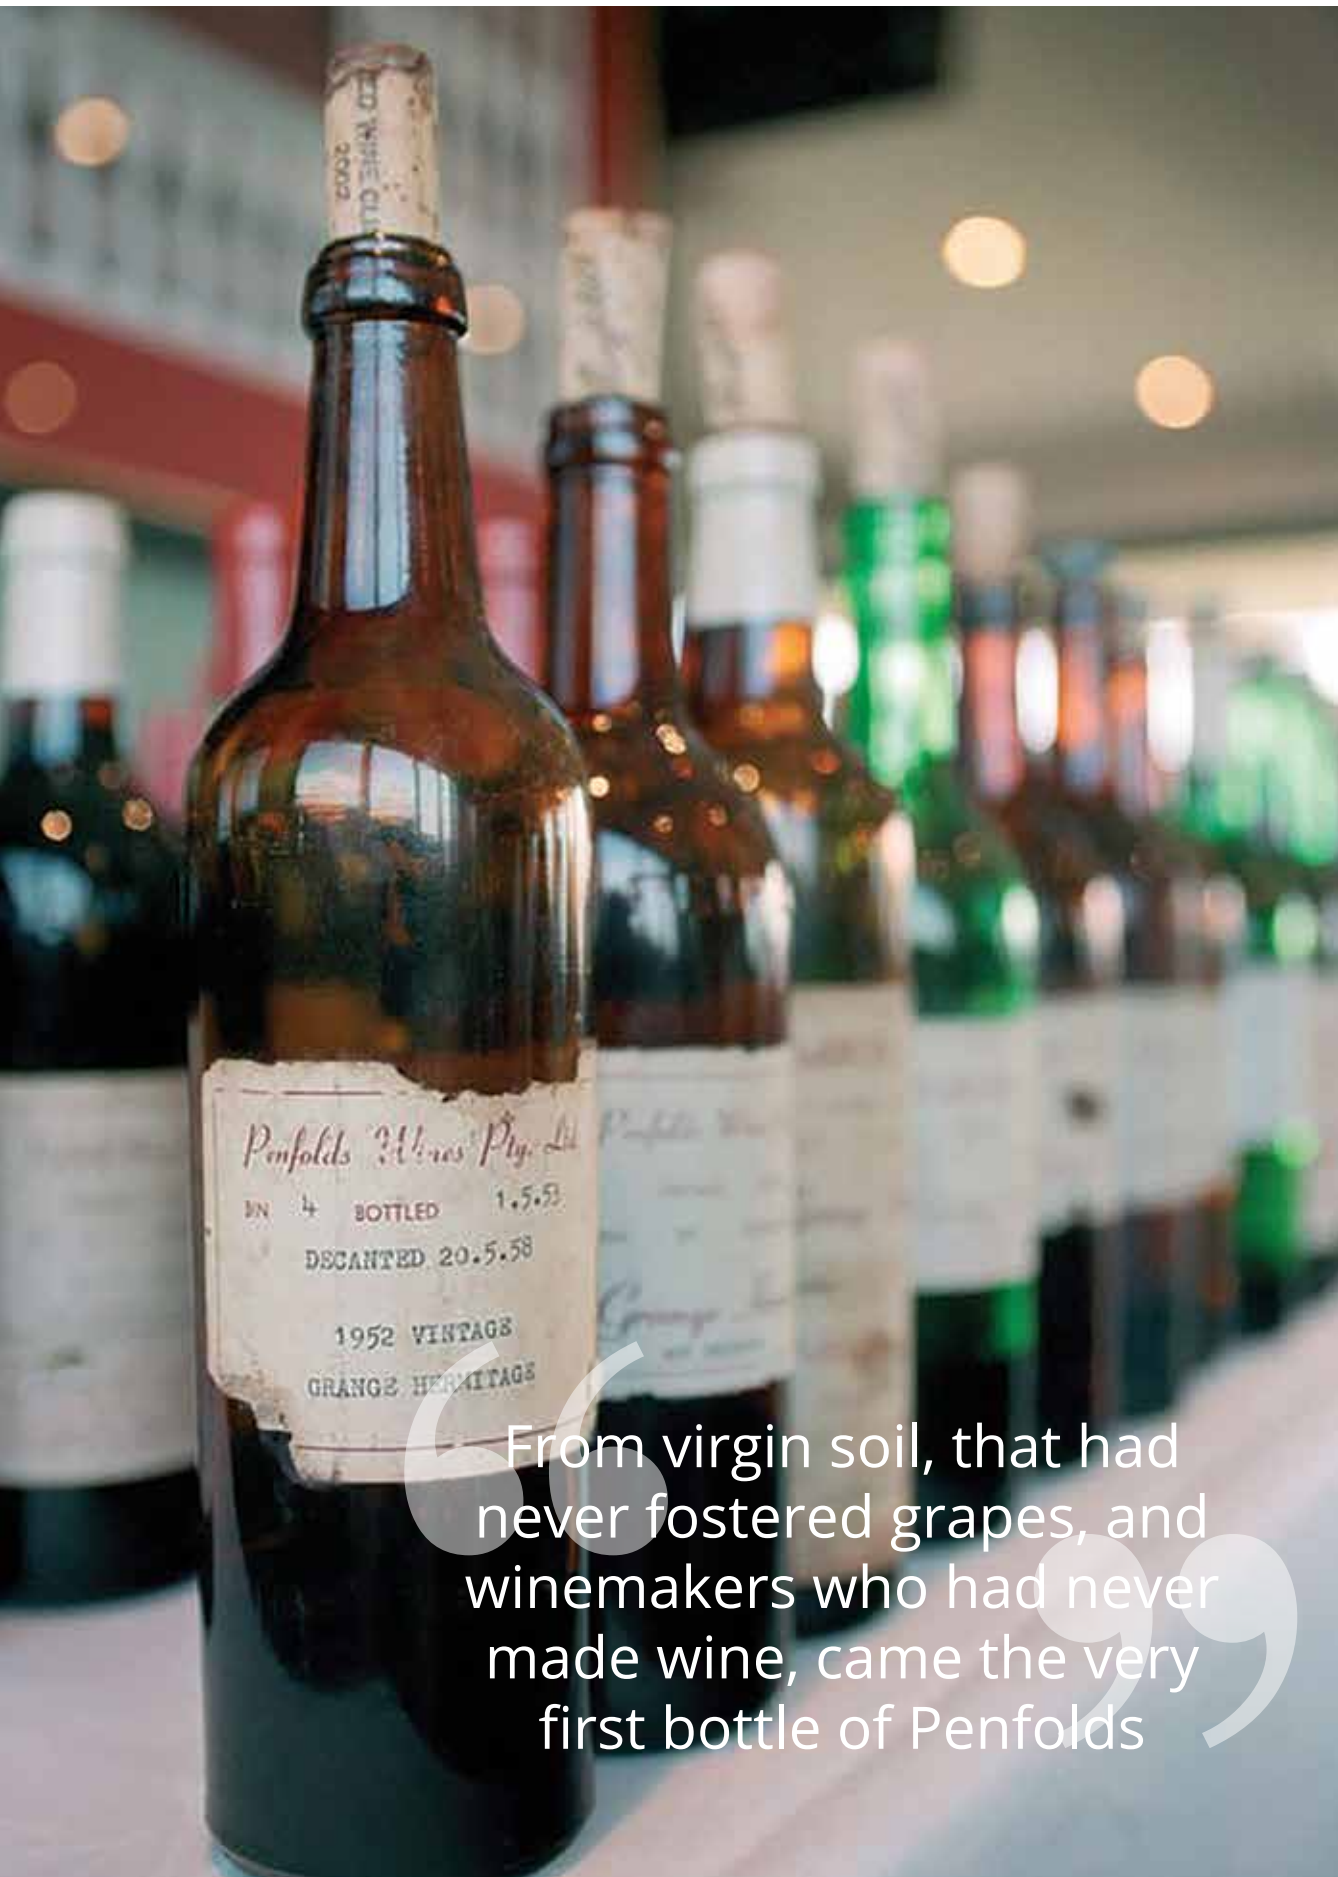

It was Mary Penfold who would strike a lasting image, riding a grand, white horse along the vine rows each day, overseeing the planting, pruning and production, even after her husband passed. Mary also sustained the operations, and she remains an honored figure in the Penfolds legacy, responsible for growing a brand before women were even allowed to vote.

Max Schubert, originally hired as the team's messenger boy, became the brand's first Chief Winemaker by his 33rd birthday in 1948. Max, like Mary, saw risk and adversity as positives, using a keen mind and a passion for adventure, he journeyed to Spain and to France, carefully studying the masters of fine wine.

“All winemakers should possess a good fertile imagination if they are to be successful in their craft.”

Max Schubert, Penfolds First Chief Winemaker

“From virgin soil, that had never fostered grapes, and winemakers who had never made wine, came the very first bottle of Penfolds”

Penfolds began with vines from Europe, grown in Australia. Under Schubert, an idea blossomed. He began his own experiments, harvesting Australian-grown grapes, aging and blending using ancient, French techniques.

The 'Grange' wine was conceived—one of the most famous, acclaimed and collected wines on the planet today. Schubert's first vintages were not immediately accepted by the company. Ordered to cease making Grange, he stubbornly continued on, making it in secret. Resampling the same wine years later, completely unaware, the team loved it. Schubert had convinced Penfolds of what the future could hold.

The 1990 vintage of Grange was named Wine Spectator's Red Wine of the Year in 1995. On its 50th birthday in 2001, Grange was listed as a Australian heritage icon. Its acclaim continues with the new vintage, 2019, receiving eleven 97+-point scores from global critics upon its release August 4, 2023.

Peter Gago is only the fourth winemaker in the company's nearly 200-year history. His bold vision has wrought the California Collection, when vine clippings again traversed the high seas, carried from Australia to be planted in Paso Robles. The results of 20 years of viticulture and wine trials are now resting in oak and impressing in glasses. The 2023 Collection comprises three country-of origin-portfolios – Australian, Californian and French releases. It showcases Penfolds enduring 'House Style' in a global context.

Through nearly two centuries, Penfolds has carried on the legacy of its namesake creators. With great risk comes great reward, and in the case of this winemaker, a fondness for combining techniques, styles, climates and creativity from not one region but from both hemispheres, across three continents.

Welcome to one of the most enduring sips in all the world.

Lifestyle Designer Kimberly Pucci Creates a Yacht-haute Lifestyle with Americana Glamour and European Quality and Heritage.

By Angela Caraway-Carlton

In a world where everyone is constantly on the move, hopping from jets to cars and yachts, designer Kimberly Pucci is elevating the nomadic lifestyle. Particularly for those who are nautically inclined. "As an avid traveler, I've focused my luxury lifestyle brand around how one travels and what we look like traveling, and making that feel and look cohesive," says Pucci. "This is about maintaining that same level of luxury in all aspects of your life and travel."

With a home and namesake flagship atelier in Newport, Rhode Island, much of Pucci's nautical-know-how is inspired by the area's centuries of marine history. The designer also relies on her extensive background of living and working in Italy for 25 years. She began her career along Florence's Ponte Vecchio, working with a family of jewelers whose storied lineage dates back to the 1300s. Pucci specially crafted pieces for Ted Kennedy and his wife at the time, as well as for royalty like an African king. "In the same way I design jewelry, I now create covetable luxuries for everyday living," Pucci says. "My designs take one from their home to their jet to their yacht. Everything can be customized as an extension of their own personal branding."

Pucci's American luxury goods brand is crafted like European heritage brands and includes bespoke travel accessories and exquisite home decor that's part of The Kimberly Pucci | Casa collection for superyacht and mega-yacht living. Her offerings extend to soft and hard luxury decor for new builds as well as refits. When it comes to statement-making interiors, expect hand-woven leather wall panels, made-to-measure bedding, cashmere blankets, unique glass tiles, and hand loomed rugs that resemble pieces of art. With a finite amount of personal space on a yacht, Pucci desires to maximize every inch. "Every yacht should be different and unique. My design ethos includes an understanding of where a client is from and how to make their yacht an extension of their home and lifestyle," Pucci says. "I also want to know the boat's destinations and where it resides most of the year. That makes a big difference, especially when it comes to comfort. They may need different bedding or a heavier weight for their coverlet depending on the conditions."

But what truly sets Pucci apart is her devotion to Italian craftsmanship, as she works with artisans, seamstresses and cabinet makers in Italy to create an interior atmosphere that matches the world's top yacht designs. The designer sources lightweight cashmere from Florence, as well as linens from Lake Como, so Italian-made boats are finished with the highest quality materials. Pucci now conceives and creates ultra-luxe designs for Pershing Yachts, which is owned by Ferretti Group, where each hull has its own individual personality. The designer is also a partner of Allied Marine and created an exclusive Kimberly Pucci pop-up experience for guests at this summer's 2023 Allied Marine Rendezvous in Montauk.

Her travel bags, including large weekenders, totes and carry-alls, add another layer of indulgence for the jet-set crowd. They can be customized with the name of the boat or with its owners' initials, as well as the boat's coordinating colors and aesthetics. Each piece is crafted with buttery soft leather, fully customizable details, and fashioned to easily fit anywhere from yachts to private jets. Even as a boutique brand, Pucci manufactures her lifestyle goods near the distinguished Scandicci region of Tuscany, where the world's most exclusive brands produce their leather goods. A testament to her unwavering commitment to craftsmanship, Pucci's small-batch color tannery is approved by the U.S. for sustainability and offers more than 250 colorways. Some of the most popular hues include fiery orange Arancia, which is reminiscent of the sunsets that she captures from her second home in Tuscany; Aqua from her Amalfi collection that recalls the turquoise umbrellas that line the Amalfi Coast; as well as her signature stripes that are fitting of any nautical lifestyle.

[ABOVE PAR, BELOW DECK]

Those who wish to travel with their dog can bring their pet aboard in synchronized style. Pucci recently released the Frankie Collection, a pet accessories line that's inspired by her golden retriever, Frankie, and crafted in premium Italian leather. The line features collars, leashes, waste bag holders and coordinating credit card holders for owners that come in 12 colorways and her signature stripes. For those jet-set pets onboard, Pucci also creates customized dog beds made with soft linens or cotton that match the bedding of the boat for a harmonious, seamless look. Thanks to Pucci's ever-evolving vision and creations, everyone can travel in style.

During the Fort Lauderdale International Boat Show, the Miami International Boat Show, and the Palm Beach International Boat Show, Pucci will be dock-hopping between the Ferretti pavilion and the Allied stand. Discover her latest collections at kimberlypucci.com

SPORTY BY NATURE AND EXTRAORDINARILY LIVABLE PERSHING GTX116

Opening up a new dimension of yachting.

Innovative, disruptive, thrilling. Revolutionary in its concept and design, the new PERSHING GTX116 interprets the trends of the moment to create the first Sport Utility Yacht, a unique product designed for comfort and extreme livability and true to the brand's DNA, characterized by high performance and a sporty attitude.

The flagship of the new GTX range, featuring elegant and aerodynamic exterior styling, is 35 meters long and over seven meters in the beam, offering generous open spaces, areas in direct contact with the water and exceptional onboard livability, all without making any trade-offs in terms of superior performance. The yacht has two decks and an upper sportfly that can comfortably accommodate up to 10 guests thanks to the new five-cabin layout, plus three cabins for five crew members. PERSHING GTX116 is masterpiece of cutting-edge naval design that takes the experience of yachting into a new dimension by understanding customers' needs as only Pershing knows how.

The splendid result of collaboration between the Ferretti Group Product Strategy Committee led by Piero Ferrari, the design firm headed by Fulvio De Simoni and the Group's Engineering Department, the hull was built at the Ferretti Group Plug and Mould facility and brings together advanced technologies and Pershing's signature craftsmanship.

With its strikingly sporty and characterful lines, this new GTX range yacht comes in a shade of Montecarlo Grey chosen with a nod to the gran turismo automotive tradition. Extensive glazing bathes the interiors with natural light while offering up spectacular marine panoramas.

Thanks to the experience of the Ferretti Group and Studio De Simoni teams, the distribution and use of space on PERSHING

GTX116 is extremely intelligent, with a fluid flow system connecting the generous internal and external living areas – including the two stairways built into the superstructure that link the main deck and the sportbridge – as well as allowing natural light to flood in.

Some of the external features, such as the ventilation grills and windshield visor, were produced for the first time using 3D printing technology to obtain subtly unconventional geometries. The stern garage can accommodate a jet tender up to 5.2 meters long and a jet ski, while hidden in the bulwark is a crane to facilitate moving the water toys into and out of the water.

With a design approach that ensures seamless interconnection, the exteriors and interiors of the new Pershing GTX116 become part of the same space, facilitating onboard flows and enhancing the livability of the areas involved.

[PERSHING GTX116]

For the interiors, Fulvio De Simoni Yacht Design envisaged lavishly-sized modern spaces that perfectly embody this model's innovative personality. The interior design concept is defined by a dialogue between dark wood in the verticals and pale color tones on the ceilings.

The eucalyptus wood furnishings in all the yacht's living areas have a 45-degree specular grain pattern to accentuate the chiaroscuro effect, as well as being set in a solid wood frame that matches the walls to create visual continuity.

The new PERSHING GTX116's decor features top design brands including Poltrona Frau, the longstanding partner chosen for the sofa in the main deck saloon, the furniture frames, and the headboards and bed frames in the cabins, and Ernestomeda for the fully appointed galley. The Altraluce lighting takes the form of individual spotlights mounted on black aluminum bars.

MAIN DECK

The Main Deck is the focus of innovation in the new GTX range and extends across two levels, the first designed for outdoor life in contact with the sea and the second for socializing and conviviality.

On the first level is the spacious beach club, a 40-square-metre teak-covered area at the water's edge, consisting of an extended stern platform and a sundeck separated by lateral gunwales. The latter have a hydraulic mechanism that merges the two areas into a single generous space, which can also be used under way and has access to the cockpit (over 35 square meters) on the second level.

The cockpit is a truly panoramic space with an external social and dining area and a bar. The cockpit also leads into the lavishly-sized main saloon, which offers a unique experience and an unprecedented sensation of seamless contact with the water thanks to its extensive glazing and sheer spaciousness.

At the entrance to the saloon, a large living space furnished with armchairs and an L-shaped sofa seating ten offers breathtaking sea views thanks to the possibility of a lateral sliding door that opens onto a terrace extending over the water and more than four meters long. Further forward, the dining area has a large table seating up to ten people, while the galley, depending on the owner's needs, can also be designed with a bar counter - show kitchen.

Two doors – one in the saloon and one in the galley – provide discreet access to the helm station, where the windscreen, a single piece uninterrupted by verticals, wraps around the entire breadth of the superstructure (around five meters). The bridge is characterized by a futuristic console, black leather upholstery and a carbon fiber pilot seat. This magnificent one-off exercise is custom designed specifically for this yacht, with onboard instrumentation featuring even more advanced technology than the brand's already high standard. The top choice version is fitted with latest-generation ultra-wide Navico-Simrad screens for high-precision navigation. The generous sun area in the bow can be fitted with an optional Whirlpool Jacuzzi.

LOWER DECK

The five-cabin night area has a centrally positioned full-beam owner's cabin, two doubles and two twins, all with private bathroom, plus a sixth bathroom off the main stairway.

Owners also have the choice of an alternative layout in which one of the guest cabins is replaced by a lower saloon for guests to enjoy in intimate privacy.

Further forward are the crew quarters, with a pantry, a laundry and three cabins for a five-member crew (two twins for the crew and a single for the captain). To enable the owner and their guests to enjoy absolute privacy, the crew area connects directly to the helm station on the main deck. The yacht is also designed with crew-only passageways so that crew members have no need to cross spaces reserved for the owner and guests.

SPORTBRIDGE

The sportbridge is another of the innovations introduced into the sport superyacht segment by PERSHING GTX116: a deck of over 40 square meters partially covered by a hardtop and featuring a fully equipped bar area with seating built into the main structure. Forward, on the other hand, is the exterior helm station, with up to three sport seats to give guests a thrilling hands-on experience.

ENGINE ROOM

The engine room contains a triple waterjet propulsion system, the result of a huge design effort by the product team to fit all the components into a smaller space, so providing more room for the garage and beach area. The result of this strategy is a high-tech engine room that demonstrates how innovative systems can be concentrated, while also achieving extraordinary performance levels.

PROPULSION AND TECHNOLOGY

PERSHING GTX116 is equipped with a triple water jet propulsion system that can be paired with three MAN V12 2000 engines, each rated 2,000 mhp (optional), for a top speed of 34 knots and a cruising speed of 29 knots. The standard engines are three MAN V12 1800 units rated 1,800 mhp. The yacht has a RINA Class Certificate for Pleasure Yachts.

LOUIS XIII

LIMITED EDITION

Launched in June, the latest edition cognac from LOUIS XIII is RARE CASK 42.1, available in a limited run of 775 decanters globally. This is the third limited-edition from LOUIS XIII and the exceptional cognac's aromatic profile is a distinct expression never encountered before, with an unexpected 42.1% alcohol by volume.

Discovered by Baptiste Loiseau, LOUIS XIII's fifth generation Cellar Master, the single Tiercon, containing this precious blend was found in the cellars of Domaine du Grollet, the home of the LOUIS XIII Legacy. Each tiercon is made from French oak trees that take over 100 years to reach maturity, and contain precious eaux-de-vie sourced from Grande Champagne's terroir. Kept undisturbed, the eaux-de-vie evolves as the liquid deepens with intensity and mahogany hues.

To complement RARE CASK 42.1's expression and rarity, the 775 limited-edition numbered decanters are hand-crafted from black Baccarat crystal. Each decanter's neck is dressed in gold and rhodium finished details and finely engraved with quadrilobed patterns in reference to France's Fleur-de-lys.

RARE CASK 42.1 is the first Rare Cask edition from LOUIS XIII to be presented as a ritual set. The black crystal decanter is accompanied by a pair of glasses, each glass adorned with black quatrefoils and a serving pipette featuring a black medallion. "While the singularity of a RARE CASK rests on the wonder of nature and the aging of eaux-de-vie, the know-how that it requires to produce is an art form, passed on from generation to generation, where each Cellar Master perpetuates the gestures of his predecessors" shares Baptiste Loiseau.

During this year's Allied Marine Private Summer Rendezvous LOUIS XIII offered unique cognac tasting experiences to yacht owners.

The tasting of the eaux-de-vie as they age is part of the lifelong purpose of each Cellar Master to preserve the LOUIS XIII Legacy. Previous limited editions include RARE CASK 43.8, released in 2009 by prior Cellar Master Pierrette Trichet, and RARE CASK 42.6 in 2013 when Baptiste Loiseau and Pierrette Trichet were collaborating. For the third time in history, in an unexpected departure from the ordinary passage of time, Baptiste Loiseau uncovers RARE CASK 42.1.

Good decisions are often impacted by good food, which is exactly why The Fort Lauderdale International Boat Show provides delicious upmarket fare for patrons. It'll be easy to keep your hunger in check with over 100 of the finest food concessions in the nation, offering everything from wood-fired pizza and zesty street-style tacos, to fresh crab claws and juicy hand-crafted burgers. It's a stimulation of the senses in every respect, and we hope you leave the FLIBS grounds invigorated, stocked up, and ready for your next ocean adventure.

GETTING AROUND

Like any voyage, we suggest pre-plotting a course to navigate the expansive FLIBS grounds, which will stretch nearly 90 acres. The Broward County Convention Center will serve as the main transportation hub, offering 3,000 parking spaces for show patrons at a friendly $25 per day; from the convention center, ticket holders will have easy access to all exhibit locations via complimentary shuttle. A boat with an ambition for innovation to match her grand scale, the FERRETTI YACHTS 920 exudes the easy power of a nautical giant.

This fantastic flybridge is a true design original – the first in the range to embrace the wide-body concept. Her majestic presence makes a striking first impression. The eye-catching profile is underlined by the detailing on the gunwale, which extends beyond the bulwark walkways and intersects the master-cabin window like a blade. Yet with a hull length of 23.98 meters, she can be registered as a pleasure boat.

Her dynamic, irrepresible lines further develop the style tenets that have earned international plaudits for the new models launched in recent years in a complete revamp of the fleet. Besides the striking raised bow, the external spaces also impress with an array of areas to relax in amid the resplendent décor. And the remarkable interiors are as roomy and elegant as you'd expect to find on a superior class of yacht. The recently introduced PURE version underlines the authentic Ferretti Yachts style – warm, enveloping and lavishly appointed with prestige materials and sophisticated details. This exquisite emblem of the brand is acquiring a cult following among boating enthusiasts and connoisseurs alike.

Embarking on a TASTE made in ITALY

By Chef Michele Casadei Massari

It was a tremendous privilege to be invited by Allied Marine to guide their valued guests on a journey deep into the heart of Italy's culinary excellence during their recent yacht sojourn in the Hamptons, at the Yacht Club in Montauk, New York. As a devoted champion of Italy's rich food traditions, I wished to design an experience for their guests that would transport their enlightened guests on an odyssey from my country's tradition to the sophisticated and fun night. Our vision was to curate a voyage illuminated by torchbearers of history - to traditional dairies nestled in the food valley, my beloved Emilia-Romagna region, to balsamic vinegar artisans presiding over centuries of patient alchemy, and to noble estates where olives slowly yield their emerald elixir. This sensorial adventure would unravel the ancestry of provenance and the poetry of flavor that has nourished Italy's soul for centuries upon centuries. An invitation not just to taste, but to immerse mind and spirit in the sanctity of Italy's culinary heritage. This was my quest – to escort Allied Marine's honored voyagers through a portal into the pinnacle of Made in Italy's peerless food treasures.

I began our elegant feast by unveiling a colossal wheel of Parmigiano Reggiano, specially transported from a caseificio, Italian word for creamery, nestled in Emilia's valley. As I breached the rind and cleaved open this cheese steeped in centuries of tradition, our honored guests witnessed the poetry of the senses — the satisfying sound of the knife piercing, the heady aroma escaping its cave-aged cocoon, the complex nutty flavors waiting to be savored. I longed to share with Allied Marine's guests this ritual unlocking of secrets sealed within. These cheese artisans are curators of time and place, their legacy a portal into the soul of Made in Italy, their passion and sense of duty embedded in Italian food culture. Together we experienced why Parmigiano Reggiano is an icon amongst cheeses.

Next, drops of amber balsamic vinegar from Acetaia Giusti elevated the risotto prepared within the hollowed wheel of Parmigiano Reggiano. At this family-run estate, led now by the 17th generation, nestled amongst a series of historic barrels some over 100 years old, I had the chance to witness many times how their traditional balsamic slowly concentrates into an incredibly complex elixir. As our guests tasted the nuanced sweetness of what in Modena is called “black gold”, they understood how this tradition symbolizes Italy's commitment to quality and excellence through extraordinary patience and care. The balsamic I used to complete our feast that evening was from this very Private Reserve series, produced from casks I adopted and that passionate patrons from all over the world are allowed to do.

For the next stage of our feast, I unveiled a sublime monocultivar extra virgin olive oil from Palazzo di Varignana, a luxury resort and agricultural estate nestled in Emilia Romagna's undulating hills. I wished to highlight for our voyagers how Italy's olive oils reflect the great biodiversity of their terroirs – each with its own story to tell. Palazzo di Varignana is an homage to a beautiful land just a stone's throw from Bologna, where marvelous hills guard millennia of memories. This stunning area, close to my hometown and surrounding their Resort has come to life thanks to the redevelopment of the land, which also includes olive groves. I was absolutely delighted to share the fruits of this labor with Allied Marine's friends.

[EMBARKING ON A TASTE OF ITALY]

ACETAIA GIUSTI

In curating this culinary experience, my goal was to provide a window into the people, places and passion behind Italy's iconic foods and artisanal traditions. I wanted Allied Marine's guests to taste the stories and understand the care required to produce true Italian quality. My cuisine reflects my ongoing connection to local producers, and together with Allied we aimed to offer guests a sense of place through the lens of food.

I found a natural synergy with Allied Marine's philosophy of providing superb attention to detail, personalized service and curating beautiful experiences for their clients. Just as Allied Marine enables their guests to embark upon unforgettable voyages at sea, as owner and executive chef of Lucciola restaurant in New York, I endeavor to craft culinary adventures that transport our clients to the heart of Italy through its flavors and food traditions.

I thank Allied Marine for this opportunity and look forward to further culinary adventures.

Innovations at the helm like state of the art Furuno electronics and surface drive technology make MORNINGSTAR easy to operate and engaging for both Captains and owners. Comfortable leather seating for 3 at the helm station. Carbon fiber and chrome enhance the look.

Going downstairs, a day head is located on the starboard side, prior to entering the stateroom area. This allows guests to use the restroom without disturbing any of the guest cabins. 4 well-appointed staterooms, each have ensuite heads and showers. Master stateroom with His and Hers access to the Master bath, and an oversized shower with ample natural lighting. VIP stateroom features a large television and leather sofa seating area. Two generously sized twin cabins. Light colored carpeting, headliners and cabinetry are paired with light wood. Condition of all finishings and soft goods are 'like new'.
