wallywhy200

Yet again Wally has pushed forward the boundaries of possibility creating a yacht that has never been seen before in the history of yachting. Wallywhy200 is the first model of the new wallywhy range, which made its World debut at Cannes Yachting Festival 2021 and already left an indelible mark on the world of yacht design.

The innovative motor yacht combining the comfort and space of a larger displacement yacht with the speed and performance of a semi-displacement, was developed by Wally design team led by Luca Bassani, Wally's Founder and Chief Designer, jointly with the Ferretti Group Engineering Department, working with Laurent Giles NA Ltd for naval architecture and Vallicelli Design Studio for interior design.

"We are very proud of wallywhy200, a yacht that was a bit of a gamble but that today rewards us with a result that exceeds our wildest expectations," says Stefano de Vivo, Wally's Managing Director. "With its widebody design, this 200 GT yacht offers far larger volumes compared to traditional motorboats, plus a living space and stability that are definitely greater than any competitor's. It essentially provides all the advantages of a catamaran but has none of the limitations, namely the lack of volume linked to the main central hull and mooring problems."

We are very proud of wallywhy200, a yacht that was a bit of a gamble but that today rewards us with a result that exceeds our wildest expectations

"This innovative yacht in terms of performance and stability was born from the brilliant vision of Wally, from the considerable experience in building hulls of the Ferretti Group, which has been designing its hulls 'in-house' for over 20 years, and from the collaboration with Laurent Giles Naval Architects. Wallywhy200 is a yacht that stands out on the international scene both for the essential design that distinguishes Wally yachts, and for its innovative concept, which can offer a different sailing experience to the owner. It is the ideal yacht to freely and safely regain possession of one's space with family and friends."

"Like all Wallys, which for nearly 30 years has been ahead of their time and the setters of new standards in yachting design, the new compact superyacht wallywhy200 carries the 'Wow' factor engraved in its DNA," comments Luca Bassani, Wally's Founder and Chief Designer. "The new wallywhy200 expresses all its innovative power through new architectural elements, which represent a break with the past and with the typical clichés of a motor yacht. Ferretti Group made it possible to realize a concept that had been close to my heart for some time, believing in the success of a bold design that will improve the owner's experience on board and represent a turning point in the motor yacht market."

Stunning mastersuite overlooks the sea, with an uninterrupted 270° view of the horizon.

WOW-BOW: WALLY'S STYLISTIC MASTERPIECE THAT REFRAMES THE DESIGN RULES

In keeping with a design philosophy that aims, on the one hand, to combine form and function through distinctive and highly recognizable aesthetic and, on the other, to guarantee a new and immersive yachting experience with the element of water, wallywhy200 features a spectacular 4.7-meter-high glazed bow housing a stunning 37 m² master suite overlooking the sea, with an uninterrupted 270-degree view of the horizon. This cabin stands out also for its exceptional noise levels thanks to the positioning of the engine room which is located at the opposite end of the yacht.

The eye-catching upper deck has a futuristic glass and carbon dome, a distinctive Wally feature that is reminiscent of the clean, angular look of the legendary wallypower118. Also on the upper deck, the extended, structural top with no supporting pillars is a masterpiece of design and engineering for its exceptional stability and strength.

THE ESSENTIAL ELEGANCE OF THE INTERIOR

The wallywhy200 features a four-cabin layout: the master cabin with two separate bathrooms on the main deck, a VIP and two guest cabins on the lower deck. An absolute novelty is the spectacular one-piece laminated carbon staircase which, as well as having a load-bearing function, is an extremely light element connecting the three decks and making the bulkheads superfluous in the huge 61 m² open space living area, enhanced by a practical show-cooking kitchen. Open-pore teak was chosen for the furniture. The walkways of the two living halls and the lower deck corridor are also teak. The restful and natural color palette of neutral and sandy tones creates a refined and timeless effect.

ON-DEMAND INFOTAINMENT AT YOUR FINGERTIPS

Thanks to the 5G wireless network connection with home automation control, guests are able to comfortably manage all the audio/video systems via mobile devices, both outside and inside the yacht. Through Naviop's integrated system, they will also be able to check navigation data, keeping the yacht's progress and parameters constantly under control. The first unit features a state-of-the-art 55 inch TV in the upper living room and a 5.1 Premium sound system on the main and upper decks, while a sophisticated Sonance sound system serves the outdoor areas.

BEACH CLUB: A HUGE LIVING ROOM ON THE WATER

Experiencing the sea means also enjoying activities in direct contact with the water. The wallywhy200 is unsurpassed in this respect too: the folding beach club bulwarks, for example, not only allow access to the sea on three sides (according to a radically innovative concept), but also expand the living area to 32 m², transforming it into a true terrace over the water, with size and features that make all competitors, even larger ones, pale in comparison. In addition, wallywhy200 boasts two garages with a storage capacity never seen before on yachts of this size, capable of accommodating a 4.05m jet tender, wave runner, seabob, paddleboard and all manner of water toys.

SPEED RHYMES WITH STABILITY

As all Wally hulls, the wallywhy200 is capable of cutting the waves without hitting and thus minimizing the pitching, the enhanced power package offers four Volvo Penta D-13 IPS 1350 engines 1,000 hp each. Thanks to these groundbreaking features, wallywhy200 can cruise at any speed (23 knots top speed), maintaining a horizontal position without reducing the guests' comfort on board, which is unique among fast semi-displacement yachts. Its width combined with the fin stabilizers - as a standard feature - that can be activated when at anchor or while cruising, and with two Seakeepers, ensures greater stability compared to conventional hulls.

EUROPE'S RIVIERAS

Italian, French, Portuguese, or Albanian: which European riviera will it be this summer? It's certainly not easy making a decision with this kind of variety. Whichever one you pick, keep in mind that July and August are notoriously busy months across all coasts, and all bookings need to be made well in advance.

Vernazza at sunset, Cinque Terre National Park, Ligurian Riviera, Italy

the italian riviera

THE LIGURIAN CRESCENT

Italy has no shortage of breathtaking coastal regions, but its Riviera is exceptionally unique (riviera is an Italian term, after all). The region lies between the Ligurian Sea, Alps, and Apennines and is synonymous with the colorful Cinque Terre fishing villages. Focaccine, trofie al pesto, and farinata: these are just some of the savory indulgences synonymous with the region...and in Italy, there's always much more. There is arguably little that is off the beaten path in the country, but the medieval village of Portovenere (a Lord Byron favorite!) manages to maintain its everyday authentic magic and deserves a day trip of its own. And Liguria's postcard resort city, Portofino, needs no introduction. For a dose of city life and Fabrizio De André legacy, head towards the port city of Genoa.

the french riviera

CINEMATIC GLITZ

Cote d'Azur, Provence

Crossing the Franco-Italian border into France and the southeast coast of Provence, the Côte d'Azur offers unparalleled settings: Cannes, Saint-Tropez, and Nice are the most-loved and most-visited in the area. In late spring, the Monaco Grand Prix injects boisterous energy and action into Monaco. Between Michelin-starred restaurants and local bistros, there's a wealth of excellent cuisine to be tried (though the Provençal fish stew, bouillabaisse, might not be for everyone). And if you've ever wondered what a Niçoise salad would taste like when tucked into a sandwich, make it your mission to grab a pan bagnat when in Nice!

the portuguese riviera

THE NOBLE COAST

The Estoril Coast wasn't always referred to as a riviera, but the Italian and French coastlines have seemingly brought on a naming trend. And truth be told, the region does exude "riviera energy". The coast is picturesque, the stone bass is exceptionally fresh, and the mild climate is as welcoming as they come. Plus, Lisbon's signature nightlife is right nearby. King Luís I of Portugal would spend his summers in Cascais – and for good reason: the town might just be the epitome of Portugal.

Ronaldo seems to agree; the soccer player is reportedly building his retirement mansion in Quinta da Marinha.

Azenhas do Mar village, Sintra, Lisbon, Portugal

the albanian riviera

A BALKAN HAVEN

Once upon a time, Albania's Riviera was still a secret of some sort. No more, social media and television cameos have catapulted the region to fame, and the riviera is increasingly dotted with tourist services and is often referred to as "the next Croatia". The region's most popular city, Ksamil, boasts the kind of pristine turquoise waters that are rather rare to come across in Europe. Keep in mind, though, that despite its untarnished beauty, the Albanian Riviera has fewer luxury facilities when compared to the French, Italian, and Portuguese counterparts.

Ksamil, Albanian Riviera

Though relatively close to one another, the Italian, French, Portuguese, and Albanian rivieras each offer their own kind of magic, whether it's the hue of the water, the way the sun shines through the trees, the balance of spices in the foods, the spirit of the citizens, or the general je ne sais quoi atmosphere. A potential solution to the choice overload? Make a stop in each and every one.

TEN LUXURY DIVE WATCHES YOU NEED IN YOUR COLLECTION

Dive watches provide precision and exude a sense of adventure. They are the ultimate statement of luxury designed with unidirectional rotating bezels, screw-down crowns, and water resistance capabilities to withstand the depths of the sea while maintaining impeccable timekeeping. Explore the depths of the Mediterranean Sea, scuba dive in the Maldives, or simply check time until dinner with this master list of fine timepieces that any watch aficionado would be proud to own.

THE WATCH THAT UNLOCKED THE DEEP

ROLEX SUBMARINER

Our collection begins with the legendary Rolex Submariner, “the watch that unlocked the deep” ($10,100 at rolex.com). The 1958 Submariner was the first diver’s wristwatch that was waterproof to a depth of 100m. Today, the Submariner is waterproof to a depth of 300m and continues to be the reference among diver’s watches. Its 41mm case is made of Oystersteel and has a black dial and Chromalight display with long-lasting blue luminescence.

ENGINEERED ICON IWC AQUATIMER

Features easy readability, high-pressure resistance, and innovative technical functionality. Its 42mm steel case is water resistant to a depth of 200m. The innovative external/internal rotating bezel combines safety with ease of use to prevent an unintentional adjustment of dive time. To ensure optimum legibility under water, the diving-relevant indicators on the blue dial are coated with luminous material. $6,950 at iwc.com

CLASSIC SLIM LINES TUDOR BLACK BAY 58

Next is the Tudor Black Bay Fifty-Eight. This watch pays tribute to the brand's first dive watches, and with a steel case of only 39mm, it is ideal for slim wrists, people who prefer more compact watches, and vintage-watch enthusiasts. This watch is also available in several metal choices, including gold, silver, and bronze. $4,450 at tudorwatch.com

A SERIOUS SCUBA DIVER MUST-HAVE ULYSSE NARDIN DIVER CHRONOGRAPH

No longer available new, these highly sought after watches currently fetch $30,555-40,600 on the resale market. The 44mm case is made of rose gold with a blue dial and sapphire glass, with each case individually numbered on the side. The Diver Chronograph is the perfect companion for yachtsmen and diving enthusiasts. It presents ultimate performance backup, water resistance to 300m, wrist stability, and ease of time tracking and measurement.

NEW DEPTH

TAG HEUER AQUARACER

TAG Heuer has been developing bold and innovative luxury dive watches for over 40 years. The Tag Heuer Aquaracer Professional 1000 Superdiver picks up the mantle from the Heuer 1000m Diver (1982) and the Super Professional (1984). Extreme is the most fitting description for this new creation. Conceived to work in saturation diving this watch is extremely robust and sports a bold but elegant look designed for professional divers. $6,650.00 at tagheuer.com

CLASSIC TIMEPIECE

BLANCPAIN FIFTY FATHOMS

The Blancpain Fifty Fathoms was unveiled in 1953 as the first watch with a secured uni-directional rotating timing bezel, a patented O-ring seal with double-sealed crown system, and a hefty dose of water resistance. It soon became an industry standard, and after seven decades, Blancpain is still producing the Fifty Fathoms collection in a variety of styles. Image: Bathyscaphe Quantième Complet Phases de Lune $31,600 at blancpain.com.

PRECISION AT EVERY LEVEL

OMEGA SEAMASTER

Since 1993, the Seamaster Professional Diver 300M has had a legendary following. The dial features laser-engraved waves and a date window at 6 o'clock. The skeleton hands and raised indexes are rhodium-plated and are filled with white Super-LumiNova. $5,900.00 at omegawatches.com

UNIQUE, UNMISTAKABLE DESIGN

THE PANERAI SUBMERSIBLE CARBOTECH™

It has a 42mm case made of Panerai's proprietary carbon fiber-based material that provides enhanced performance through durability, longevity, and reduced weight. Carbotech has an uneven, matte-black appearance caused by the cutting of the material, with the result being that each watch is as unique as a fingerprint. The beauty of this watch is completed by the striking sky-blue accents on an all-black dial and bezel. Further innovation is seen in the iconic locking lever that protects the crown guard. $17,400 at panerai.com

THE PIÈCE DE RÉSISTANCE

PATEK PHILIPPE NAUTILUS

Bringing our list to an end is the Patek Philippe Nautilus. Based on the model, the price ranges from $35,000 to $135,000. Often considered the most popular sports watch, the value of a Nautilus is in a league of its own. On the used market these watches typically sell for multiples of their original list price. Recently, a Patek Philippe Nautilus 5711 Tiffany Blue dial watch sold at auction for $6.5 million. The most valuable aspect of every Patek Philippe timepiece is that it is completely constructed by hand (case, dial, movement, bracelet, gem setting, and more) by dedicated, trained specialists with skills passed down through generations. Since 1976, the Nautilus embodies the exquisite sports watch, and is easily recognizable by its rounded octagonal bezel, innovative porthole construction, and horizontally embossed dial. The 40mm case has a transparent back. The bezel is fixed, and hour and minute markers are luminous. Available in steel, rose gold, white gold, and two-tone combinations, the Nautilus complements the most active lives with unrivaled flair.
